

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention is directed to a system for generating an electrical power output from a subsea installation, the subsea installation comprising at least one flowline, the system comprising a turbine operatively connected to the flowline, the turbine being rotatable by fluid
5 flowing through the flowline, and the turbine generating the electrical power output when the turbine is rotated.